

Mark J. Williams

Executive Vice President and Director, KeyCorp, Strategic Planning

Member Executive Council
KeyCorp

Mark J. Williams is Executive Vice President and Director of Strategic Planning of KeyCorp. He is responsible for driving strategy and performance management for KeyCorp as well as a critical advisor to business-unit leaders on growth, planning, market analysis, execution and cross-business initiatives.

Prior to joining KeyCorp in July 2010, Williams was at PNC Bank (formerly National City Bank) where he was an Executive Vice President having led several Corporate and Institutional businesses and functional units. His previous experience includes executive positions in strategic management, financial services and consulting institutions at Capital One Financial Corp., McKinsey and Company and GE Aircraft Engines.

Williams earned a bachelor's degree in Aerospace Engineering from Polytechnic University and received his MBA from the Harvard Graduate School of Business where he was nominated a Baker scholar.

Williams was named to Kaleidoscope magazine's "40 under 40" list of business and community leaders in the class of 1997. Currently, he serves on the Board of Directors for JumpStart Inc. (Vice Chairman), DANCECleveland (Chairman), the President's Council Foundation (Treasurer) and the Ohio Venture Capital Authority (Chairman).

Williams is an avid pilot and scuba diver who resides in the Solon area.